FOREWORD

In this election year's edition of the Official Results of the 1982 General Election we have included a new statistical chart on Page 21 showing (according to the most recent census figures) the percentages of those eligible to vote who actually voted and those registered to vote who actually voted. These figures have been broken down into the political geographical areas most used in Delaware as boundaries.

In comparing these statistics with those of the 1978 election which was also a non-presidential year election, we find that we have improved our percentage of those eligible to register who are actually registered from 65.7% in 1978 to 67% in 1982 – also we increased the percentage of those registered to vote who actually voted from 60% in 1978 to 68% in 1982 – and also increased the percentage of those eligible to vote who actually voted from 40% in 1978 to 46% in 1982.

All of these increases are hopeful indications that the interest in participating in elections by the eligible citizens of Delaware is in the upswing. However, the basis of all increases is more registration of those 142,007 unregistered eligibles. In order to reach a 80% registration, we need to register 56,458 more eligibles. Traditionally, about 15,000 more will register for the Presidential year general elections. Extra efforts will be needed to register the remaining 40,000 to achieve a goal of 80%.
